EL PASO

Imposed task of breaking up political rings and of putting government on an honest basis, a work, he said, that he continued without making a single day up to the time he was elected mayor of New York. Even so, there were persons who decided that he was an ally with Tammany Hall and other political organizations, a connection he disclaimed with quiet but impressive vigor.

Kind to His Family.
Parallel with law as a living and with reformatory police as a master, Thaw was a man of family. The young attorney went straight along the line of filial and family responsibility. No duty was overlooked. A house in Utica was bought for the father, mother and three sisters, and money was regularly sent for their support. "Be a good man," mayor Gaynor wrote to one of the judges whom he had appointed to office, "and you will be a great magistrate." Then he added: "I hope you will feel more like having your hand for assistance and strength than strutting about." Mature counsel, bluff and sensible, containing principles brought along from boyhood, no doubt.

Campaign Against Saloons.
There were 48 saloons in Flatbush, 25 of them unlicensed, when Gaynor, aged 24, went to office. He was the newcomer, called a public meeting. The response was quick and willing. A citizen ticket was organized, and a law was made police commissioner. There were to be no arrests, he said, without warrants, and no lawbreaking. Police were to be kept on the law themselves. Gaynor was taken against six saloon keepers. They were tried and convicted before Gaynor had been in office two months. All the saloons except one were closed. The man who remained threatened Gaynor with death. He was prosecuted and the threat was not made. Flatbush, fumigated morally, breathed deeply and looked around.

King Robbed City.
From Flatbush, sprawling in the suburbs, Gaynor moved to Manhattan. He was now a prosperous man, actually and prospectively. Public conditions were very bad. A ring was robbing the city. The highest bidder was obtaining contracts for bridges and pavements. Gaynor, the free attorney, was a candidate for the city council. He stopped the sale to the city of the pumps, pipes and machinery of a water supply company for $125,000. The deal was made for the ring for $135,000. At first he fought alone. In all he spent $15,000 of his own money. He missed the subject by saying: "Yet, it was a long fight."

Convicted Men of Friends.
Gaynor battling in court, paying his own expenses, also carried on the work of the police and the ring went down in ruins. A mass meeting nominated him for mayor. He refused to run, saying he was not working for public office, which may have been true. However, he accepted the nomination for justice of the supreme court. The annual salary of a judge is $17,500. Gaynor's fees as a lawyer averaged $100 a day, but a judge's term was 14 years. He had now been practicing his profession for nearly two decades. South of Brooklyn, Coney Island, a ruffian named Kane had long voted dead men, stuffed ballot boxes and tampered with election returns. The majorities were doubtful or crumbling away. Gaynor, up for office himself, sent word to Kane to get out of the city. Kane was repeated. Kane would go to jail. Kane, to show his contempt, repeated the frauds, and multiplied them as well. His sentence to Sing Sing was seven years. Sixteen of his tribesmen went to prison for complicity in his crime.

Friend of the People.
So Gaynor, in his judicial robes, a little man of thunder, with lightning bolts in both hands; dispassionate, reserved and cheerful in countenance, the people and finding them faithful, was acclaimed by the people as being the Democrat. The Democratic leaders strove to run him for governor the next year and again in 1904. Richard Croker offered him the nomination for mayor in 1907, as did the fusionists in 1905. Becoming a candidate, finally, in 1909, he carried New York city by 70,000 votes. Every year the Democratic ticket was beaten. Tammany picked him up and elected him, but Tammany sat and waited and waited against the wall, only a watcher at the feast. Some of its leaders went to work as saloons, clerks and peddling agents.

Gaynor's Place Hard to Fill, Says Bryan
Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Mayor Gaynor was a strong man, with a reputation for public life. Bryan today, on learning of the death, "He was strong not only in the sense that he showed ability in the discussion of public questions, but his place will be hard to fill. I am distressed to learn of his death."

Undertaker Finds Victim of Accident Is Own Brother
Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 11.—Called to care for the body of a man killed at the Santa Fe crossing last night, the undertaker and identifying it as that of his own brother was the experience of Harry A. Larson, who was engaged by C. Larson, aged 32. He was hit by a passenger train and horribly mangled. An hour after the killing, the undertaker, an unknown man, aged about 25 years, was killed by a train in the local yard as the train sped on. The undertaker moved his coat and before railroad employees could prevent him, threw himself in front of the train and was ground to death.

NO DEMAND FOR TEXAS SCHOOL BONDS IN MARKET
Austin, Tex., Sept. 11.—There is little or no demand for Texas school bonds at present in the bond market, for the reason that the counties and school districts having these bonds at present are having a hard time in the disposition of these securities. The State board of education is now the only bidder for the bonds and the board is now deluged with offers to sell bonds for the benefit of the permanent school fund.

OWEN AND VAL VERDE ARE CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE
Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Thomas E. Owen has been confirmed by the senate as receiver of public money at Pecos and Val Verde was confirmed as receiver of the land office at Clayton, N. M.

On the case to governor S. D. Felker, of this state, Thaw was a man of family. "Any action that I might take in the Thaw case will be governed largely by the recommendations of attorney general 'Turtle,'" said governor Felker at the capitol.

Arrested as Matter of Form.
A matter of form, Thaw was arrested in his room shortly after 10 o'clock on a complaint sworn to before justice Morchauer in Dutchess county, New York, who issued a blanket warrant charging Thaw and those who assisted him to escape from Matteawan with conspiracy.

Talks Incoherently.
Talking incoherently of Detroit, his lawyers, his mother and of wife of his mother, he was driven east over the boundary. At Verilla, Vt., five miles on the way, he stopped at a small hotel. He ordered bread and milk and gulped it down while he tried to get Montreal over the top of the little hotel.

Car Runs Too Fast.
"Never mind my car," he shouted the fugitive, "but hold on there driver; we don't want to break your necks." The car pulled his 32 down to 20 miles an hour. A farm wagon drove in sight. Thaw seemed frightened for a moment, but he had no time to think. He could not talk coherently; he could give no idea of what he purposed to do.

Stops to Telephone.
But he could not stop to his resolve and his inability to telephone. He seemed to gail him. Less than four miles out of Stewartstown, running south and east, he made the chauffeur stop at a farm house of Mrs. Martha Atherton, whose husband was away in Connecticut, stood well back from the road. Thaw had the car stop at the house. He had noticed a telephone wire running into the kitchen.

Offers Him a Meal.
"This is Mr. Thaw," said Mrs. Day, in a matter of fact sort of way. Thaw arose and bowed to Mrs. Atherton. She gazed at him a moment and then offered him a limp ham. As Thaw took it, she said: "We are not used to having a man like you here. If you will stay here, we will be glad to do it. I'll cook you a meal or give you the team or anything you say."

Thaw Declined Assistance with Thanks.
"I must be going in a few moments," he said. He stepped to the telephone and again when the operator told him it was out of the question to get Montreal, he had the two women goodbye and hailed Cantine.

Thaw's Fate.
Thaw leaped forward and looked in the sheriff's face. In his heart he must have felt relieved; his face showed it. He was a prisoner again and the responsibility of being free and not knowing what to do was lifted. He shook the sheriff's hand cordially and climbed into the sheriff's big machine. Under his arm he bore his cigar. "Give me a square deal, sheriff," he said. "They did me dirt in Canada and

ITCHED FOR 20 YEARS, RESINOL CURED IN 10 DAYS
Baltimore, Md., July 10, 1913.—"About twenty years ago both my legs began to itch from ankle to knee. Little pimples came out that looked very much like heat. The itching and burning was something terrible. I would start to scratch and could not stop. I would even scratch through the skin and that of course would leave a sore which I was compelled to bandage."

"I tried several prescriptions and treatments, but received not a particle of benefit—no more than if the treatments were cold water. I then began to have very little faith in anything and of course could do nothing but scratch away. After suffering constantly for twenty years, a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. From the very first application, I found relief, and was entirely cured in ten days. The itching and stinging sensations have ceased, and my skin is as smooth as a baby's." (Signed) Charles Warner, 1123 N. Stricker St.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for eighteen years and every druggist in the country sells Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. For free trial, write to Dept. 14-B, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

and expenditures since the federation's organization. In 1908, the witness said, the federation campaigned in 11 states he could remember, and probably worked in more, employing about 25 speakers and holding many mass meetings. The legislative committee here, he said, consisted of Arthur H. Brown, John Moffatt and Grant Hamilton, each of whom were paid $6 per day and were in service practically the entire year on legislative work.

Fight for Eight Hour Day.
Mr. Gumpers gave a long explanation of labor's fight for an eight hour day on government work. "Do you think it right that the law shall provide that a man shall not work more than eight hours a day?" he asked. "I think," the witness replied, "when a citizen is so regardless of his own rights and welfare that he does not look out for himself, it is time for the government to intervene and protect him. If he works more than eight hours they do so at the expense of their fellows."

Not a Cure, Says Bristol.
Representative Hayes, of California, admitted the value of some of the bill's provisions and representative Murdock, of Kansas, criticized the measure as "halting, timid, halfway, compromising."

Criticism Reserve System.
Republican opposition voiced by representative Hayes and representative Murdock, of Missouri, was based upon the provision of the measure requiring that national banks subscribe 50 per cent of their capital stock and five per cent of their deposits as a fund to capitalize the federal reserve banks. The return on this investment—five per cent under the bill—the Republicans declared was not sufficient profit to induce the banks to enter the system. The broad powers of the federal reserve board and its "partisan political complexion" also were criticized.

LIND CONTINUES TO STAY AT VERACRUZ

President Wilson's Envoy May Return to Mexico City After the Mexican Congress Convenes.
Veracruz, Mex., Sept. 11.—Additional and reliable information tends to confirm practically beyond doubt that John Lind will not return to Mexico City until congress has received and had an opportunity to discuss provisional president Huerta's message, which will be read on September 15. By that time, it is said, senor de Zamacoena, the Mexican envoy now in Washington, will have had a chance to place before president Wilson and secretary of state Bryan representations from Gen. Huerta.

Meanwhile, Mr. Lind is studying closely the changing conditions. September 16, the day after congress convenes, is Independence day, and throughout the republic is planned a great demonstration of patriotism. In accordance with the order that all able bodied men in the republic shall be drilled for participation in the parade that day, the Veracruz authorities opened books and 60 men enrolled. It is expected that the two hundred now here will be dispatched this week, one to Tampico and the other to Coahuila.

CARRANZA PROPOSES OWN CANDIDACY FOR PRESIDENT
Rebel Leader in the North Is Said To Have Sent Representative to Huerta with Such Proposal.
Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 11.—Reports that Venustiano Carranza, governor of Coahuila and former provisional president of the republic, is said to have sent an emissary to president Huerta suggesting himself as a candidate for the presidency are current in the capital. Ricardo Garza, representing the rebel leader, is said to have gone to the national palace with the intention of formally submitting proposals of the Carranza candidacy and with the assurance that Carranza would abide by the result of the elections. It is not known with what success the emissary's proposal was met.

How the Remedy for Catarrh "Was Discovered."
THIS terrible disease has raged unchecked for years simply because symptoms have been treated while the vicious germs that cause the trouble have been left to circulate in the blood, and bring the disease back as fast as local treatments could relieve it.
C. E. Gauss, who experimented for years on a treatment for Catarrh, found that after perfecting a balm that relieved the nose and throat troubles quickly, he could not prevent the trouble beginning all over again.
On test cases, he could completely remove all signs of Catarrh from nose and throat, but in a few weeks they were back.

"He perfected the New Combined Treatment, since admitted to be the logical, safe, scientific method."
Reese Jones, of Scranton, Penn., says that after trying many other treatments, he used this new method and "my nose is now entirely clear and free and I am not bothered by the disease any more. The New Combined Treatment is worth its weight in gold."
Temporary relief from catarrh may be obtained in other ways, but the New Combined Treatment must inevitably be accepted for permanent results.
